

A love for learning. Individual responsibility. Respect for others. Motivation and self-confidence. Many of us take years to develop these qualities, but Campbell Montessori helps instill these ideas in children by teaching them to learn and grow through their own achievements. “By engaging children in their environment and encouraging them to do things for themselves, we help build a foundation for a successful future inside and outside the classroom,” said Miriam Gutting, Campbell Montessori Director.

Montessori education focuses on understanding and exploring, not just memorizing facts. Campbell students learn at their own pace, embracing the concept of teamwork.

The school also recognizes the value of parents in the learning process. Parents are their children’s first teachers, and Campbell Montessori provides many opportunities for parental involvement and education.

“As a parent of two boys, our family is fully entrenched in the primary and elementary programs. We are excited about the new middle school. Now our children can continue their Montessori education, which promotes high academic standards in a positive social atmosphere.” Julie Orr, parent Miriam Gutting holds more than 40 years experience in early childhood education and has served as director since the school’s founding in 1989. Campbell is the only Montessori school in St. Charles where curriculum and teachers are accredited by the Association Montessori Internationale.

“Montessori education has helped students excel academically, and acquire life skills for the future. We’re thrilled to provide a middle school program beginning in 2010.”

In addition to primary (2 ½-6) and elementary (6-12) classes, Campbell is accepting enrollment for its toddler program (14-30 months).
